A NEW Way of Whole Brain Learning

Tapping into a natural way of learning

In the guise of Synergy Pals as parts of our own mind, storytelling is an unconventional way to consider each other's skills and self worth. It is this mixture of humor (or pathos in some cases) and substance that makes Synergy pals dual natures more than simple entertainment. It is the universal conflict between the good uplifting use of knowledge and understanding and the dark side of understanding. The key is not only to capture the audience attention, but also to impart substance to give an overall sense of purpose to the story. It's a journey we are all on; finding our unique offering, working together, and how to become resourceful.

It's a journey that we're on. If we can't laugh at ourselves we're missing a good laugh. We attract our opposites then we attack. This is God's Cosmic Joke. She has made whole brain learning so easy there is mirth in the message. A little wit can go a long way. I am the "Nerd" Thinkabout Owl and I want one thing I want to be right. I am the "Boss" Lookabout Lion; I want to keep my eye on the ball even when I can't see the ball. I am the "Showoff" Talkabout Chimp; I want to seek and live for change. I am the "Belonger" Feelabout Koala; I am in action or in traction. A new way of whole brain learning is with Synergy Pals.

The key to unlock your promise is when each is a part of the whole. Could an Owl, a Lion, A Koala teach us teamwork is child's play? Which one is most like you would you say? Each is important just hear what they're like. And in all that they do good learners delight.

Ardys Reverman has spent her life developing a method to tap into the power of personality. We are all born with personality traits that make us unique. The traits are outward manifestations that show brain structure. How we learn is dependent on how information is perceived.

Ardys has developed a set of four personality groups and tested teaching methodology that works in a synergistic way to power individual learning capabilities.

Discover this unique learning system that makes use of natural personality traits to jump start a lifetime of successful learning.
